The Amberley Collection from Martin Grant Homes

The Amberley Collection from Martin Grant Homes is a stunning new development nestled at the bottom of the South Downs National Park. The six homes are now nearing completion and form the second of only two new developments built in the centre of Storrington in the last two years, both handled by Guy Leonard and Company.

Martin Grant Homes are renowned for their impeccable style, finish and careful choice of materials, which demonstrate their innovation in design and environmental sensitivity. The six individually designed homes reflect this reputation and will be beautifully finished, with exclusive features including stylish contemporary kitchens with Italian stone work tops, 'Villeroy and Boch' finished bathroom suites, low energy light fittings and solar panels on the five bedroom property.

Each property has its own private parking or garaging, as well as private gardens with the guaranteed serenity of being located on a quiet street. The properties have been specifically designed to blend with the existing plots around the site, and as a result contribute only further to the charming atmosphere of their prime location on the outskirts of the bustling village of Storrington with plenty of local amenities. The highlights of the development include the following:

- Close proximity to Storrington village (approximately one mile away)
- Unique position opposite a green, in a quiet tree lined location
- Two of the six homes are bungalows, rare for a new development
- West facing gardens
- Well placed for schools, transport links and community run activities

These features demonstrate that whether you are raising a family, commuting into London or retiring to the quiet of the countryside, the Amberley Collection provides something for everyone.

The homes are approaching completion and a Progress Party is being held at 12pm on Saturday 18 February. Several of the properties have been reserved off plan and this Open Day is an opportunity for the more cautious buyer to see the homes now they have been built and to establish room sizes and specification. Many samples of the finishes will be available for potential buyers to view, showing how the homes will be completed to the usual excellent Martin Grant Homes standard.

For further information regarding the Progress Party, please contact Guy Leonard and Company on 01903 742354 and they will be delighted to help.
